PHOENIX, Sept. 7, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Troxell, a national leader in education technology and collaboration solutions for more than 60 years, is happy to announce Taylor Kane as the new Account Executive for the West Tennessee, North Mississippi, and Northeast Arkansas Territories. She will work closely with school districts in order to provide the best solutions for their education technology needs and initiatives.

"This is an exciting time for education solutions, especially with the launch of STEM, STEAM, MakerSpace, and other initiatives," said Taylor Kane. "I am excited to work with the schools in my territory and provide them the best technology solutions while meeting their budgetary goals. As a recent graduate, I also look forward to bringing a fresh perspective to my districts and helping schools implement these new initiatives."

"Taylor Kane is very eager and determined to make a positive impact on the schools in her region," said Randy Duet-Champagne, Regional Vice President of Troxell's Southeast Territory. "We are excited to have her on our team, and I am pleased to introduce her to educators in her region."

Before her role as an Account Executive at Troxell, Taylor Kane was a full-time student at the University of Memphis and a volleyball coach in the city of Memphis. Taylor's gets great pleasure from coaching because she loves seeing the confidence build in young girls as they begin to get more familiar with the game of volleyball. Her favorite quote is, "Listen to understand and not to respond." This quote will serve her well in her new role at Troxell.

You may contact Taylor Kane at her office phone: (901)245-3029, her mobile phone: (901)661-4669, and her email taylor.kane@trox.com.
